GATEWAY PROJECT – ROYAL NATIONAL PARK NSW

The Department of Public Works and Services Landscape Environment and Urban Design team were engaged by NPWS to tender and administer the construction contract for a set of signs at the three 'gateway' points of the Royal National Park, namely, Audley, Waterfall and Bald Hill.

Tenders were sought and Central Signs won the contract based on their competitive price, proven abilities, and for their obvious thorough investigation of the contract documents and suitable suppliers of materials.

During the construction phase of the project Central Signs maintained a positive attitude toward the project making every effort to ensure the client was made aware of potential discrepancies prior to completion. The clients wishes were carried out, without debate, in a thorough statement of professional conduct.

The quality of work was also of a very high standard.

Given the quality of work and project management we would not hesitate in recommending the services of Central Signs.

Yours faithfully

Scott Ibbotson

Landscape Architect DPWS.
